create.docx or.xlsx files in Excel 2016, I'll explain why. It all goes back to the first version of Excel. Somewhere in the changeover from Excel 2000 to Excel 2007, Microsoft decided that they wanted to move away from the.xlsx extension for spreadsheets. So, Excel 2007 stopped supporting.xlsx files. Soon after, Microsoft decided to stop supporting.xls files in Windows XP.

Microsoft Office was depreciated and the software was discontinued. Excel 2016 is not the same product as Excel 2007. If you have the current version (2018), don't use the 2007 version of Excel. Microsoft sent an email to a lot of people back in 2010. In the email, Microsoft told people to delete all the files from Microsoft Office folder. Microsoft sent these emails because Windows XP and Windows Vista computers don't support Office 2007 or Office 2010. When you remove the older version of Excel, the newer version will take over. You can stop Excel from getting uninstalled. There are two ways to do that: Turn the computer off. If
