Past owners, who have been involved in the business of unguents and skin care for over 30 years, have sold the business to a younger generation of family members. Family. Respect. Innovation. At Mentholatum, we've put our roots deep into the soil of Maine. We bring in our own independent research and harvest products from the cold woods of Maine with our hands. We make our unguents in small batches. We know what our family has been made of for generations. It's a philosophy we have carried forward and passed on to the generations that follow us.// Copyright (c).NET Foundation and contributors. All rights reserved. // Licensed under the MIT license. Saga of the North Wind is a text-based role-playing game, with an emphasis on choice and consequence, set in a rich fantasy universe. Your decisions and actions will determine the course of your career and your destiny. You will grow wiser and stronger with each passing day, but can you remain loyal to your friends, avoid corruption, and stay true to yourself? The game simulates a day in the life of the players, with a 24-hour clock and writing session events. With multiple days, you can continue your destiny. Unlike most other games, where you watch what happens, in Saga of the North Wind, you are the main character. Through your dialogues with the NPCs and the ensuing conversations, the world reacts to your decisions and your fate can change dramatically. Saga of the North Wind can be played in a single session. You can also choose between a series of sessions that cover several days. It is entirely text-based, with no graphics or sound effects. Can you handle your current challenges? Can you drive your enemies away from your own people? Or will you go over to their side? Can you become a hero? Saga of the North Wind is based on the books by Tom Knights and the TV series by Fred Hoyle. What's new:

Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) are essential to our everyday lives. The next generation of graduates need to know STEM and it's not just during the summer. To this end, the International School of Geography (ISG) hosted their third annual Geography Festival last month. Schools from all over the world that participate in ISG -- a specialized K-12 program within a college of the University of British Columbia -- gave a 30-minute presentation about their geography related programs. Students from each school showed off their domain expertise in the ISG geography tents. It was an event filled with young minds and their beauty as well as phenomenal speakers! But before the festival began, teams were formed and the quiz got underway with a quiz. The quiz had categories such as the history of geography, covering topics such as rock, sea, ice, and lavas. First out the gate in the history of geography? Australia. Well, not exactly. The first correct answer was actually the USA. However, to give the correct answer Australia, you had to tap the flag of Australia on your device. That's where the quiz festival gets even more interesting. Deoron Goertz, an international teachers advocate in the STEM fields, coined the idea of finding the correct country to put on your device once the flags began to be removed. What's the correct geographical location to show off to your fellow ISG students and teachers? Let's find out. The top 50 teams from the contest are listed below! Scoring: In the event that a team did not buzz in within the allotted time, their data was not included in the tally. The percentage of correct answers indicates the number of correct answers that team scored for the round divided by the number of questions shown (minus a team's anonymous post-show change). In this case, a perfect score is 50%. 1) About the team: Cordon 81, The University of Queensland The University of Queensland (UQ) team saw the world differently through geography. Since all people are born into a specific geography, UQ viewed the world as a circle, and the team developed a unique data visualization mapping the newly constructed roadways that they hoped would be planned out for them. Representing a fraction of the world's population at just 8.5%, the team reasoned that wouldn't change the world much. Yet, this team of geography students very successful. Cordon 81 first
