We studied early changes in endothelial cell (EC) gene transcription, following photodynamic therapy (PDT) with Photofrin (ICRF-187; 6 min laser exposure at 60 J/cm²). Altered gene transcription was determined by hybridization to a complementary RNA (cRNA) microarray. First, the effect of PDT on different subcellular organelles was evaluated, and only the cytosolic, endoplasmic reticulum (ER), and mitochondrial fractions were isolated and studied. We found that, at the early times studied, the expression of genes of the interleukin-6 (IL-6), Tumor Necrosis Factor alpha (TNFalpha), Interleukin-1beta (IL-1beta), and CD40 ligand (CD40L) cascades was reduced in mitochondrial and endoplasmic reticulum fractions. Furthermore, there was a selective depletion of the cytoplasmic ribosomal RNA. For IL-6, an additional, and delayed, repression in the DNA-RNA complex was seen. In the endoplasmic reticulum, a suppression of both TNFalpha, IL-1beta, and IL-6 gene expression was observed. To determine which of the events in the cascade of gene expression contribute to the early alteration of transcription of the pathway, we evaluated which
